President's speech was dictated less by Russia's recent actions than by the actions of five friendly states, Great Britain, France and the Benelux nations. As Mr. Truman pointed out, those five states were signing a 50-year agreement for economic co-operation and mutual defense at the time of his speech to Congress.

The President could not at that moment commit the U. S. to military as well as economic aid for those countries. But it is clear that democratic unity abroad is meaningless without American support.
The encouragement that Mr. Truman's message obviously gave five governments may encourage them to speed toward the hoped-for goal of a united non-Communist Europe.

Naturally the request for action on UMT and a temporary return of selective service will meet opposition. Yet even the objectors should realize that the building of our armed forces to their minimum peace-time strength does not mean war. Only the most wishful-minded of those who refuse to recognize the clear pattern of Soviet aggression can believe that strong words and weak defenses will make the Russian leaders retreat, or even pause.

UMT and a temporary draft will cost money. It will cost more to modernize and strengthen our Air Force, and continue military research and development. But as Mr. Truman said, "we must be prepared to pay the price of peace or we shall pay the price of war."

The price of peace is not counted alone in money. We must also be prepared to pay the price of unity. Some will balk at that payment in this election year, particularly those who are actively engaged in politics.

We are coming into perilous months during which political disunity on foreign policy could be a fatal weakness. Stalin is doubtless counting on our disunity. Hitler did. He thought that it would im-mobilize Europe and the world. He thought our wartime presidential election would divide us and weaken our prosecution of the war. He was wrong. We were united on foreign policy then, and we can be again.

It makes no difference whether one is a Democrat or Republican, or whether he likes or dislikes Mr.
Truman. The question is whether we want to see freedom destroyed in Europe and immured in America. It is Josef Stalin, not Harry Truman, who really has dictated America's choice and America's policy.

Truman May
Get Aid Bill
This Week

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

Washington, April 1 — (AP) — A team of Senate-House foreign experts went swiftly to work today on a final compromise bill for a global American aid program.
House passage of its $6,205,000-000 measure by better than a four to one margin handed the job to the compromisers last night.

The goal is to get a bill to President Truman before the week runs out. Both Senate and House will have to vote first on the compromise.

What the experts agree to will be the final terms of a program to use America's billions and military knowledge to help Europe and China to hold the line against communism.

On that broad purpose there is no disagreement between the Senate and House. Differences are over details.

What the House approved by a 329 to 74 ballot was a wrap-up bill
to provide assistance for Europe,
Greece, Turkey and China. Leaders had set April 1 as a deadline and barely squeezed the measure under the wire.

The Senate previously had passed three separate bills, one for Europe, one for China and a third for Greece and Turkey.

Chairman Vandenberg (R-Mich.)
of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee already has agreed to follow the House lead on a single bundle bill.

The basic parts of the House and Senate bills are pretty much alike.
Both provide for a $5,300,000,000-one-year European recovery program to help 16 nations get back on their feet.

Both have voted $27,000,000 in additional military aid for Greece and Turkey.

Both have voted for economic aid and House. Differences are over details.

What the House approved by a 329 to 74 ballot was a wrap-up bill
to provide assistance for Europe,
Greece, Turkey and China. Leaders had set April 1 as a deadline

Army Officers in Japan Kill Jap Girl, Ends Own Life

Tokyo, March 31 — (UPI) — The First Cavalry division announced today that 1st Lt. Benjamin H. Pickler, Jr., 30, of Buena Vista, Tenn., shot to death a Japanese woman and then used the same pistol to commit suicide this morning.

His wife was sleeping in a room at the other end of a quonset hut the murder-suicide took place. She and their four-year-old daughter arrived in Tokyo three days ago.

Pickler left two notes, one of which said, "I must kill this woman. I have learned to love so much." The woman's name was Chiyoko Wurube.

The second note instructed the Army to make financial arrangements to return Mrs. Pickler and her daughter to the United States.

Friends said Pickler had known Miss Wurube for several months and had hired her as a housemaid.

The First Cavalry division announcement said it was believed she was shot while sleeping in an ante-room of the quonset hut.

Pickler drew a service .45 caliber automatic from headquarters armory rooms only a few minutes before the shooting occurred.

Despite Criticism Franco Spain Could Be Helpful in Carrying Out Marshall Plan

By DeWitt MacKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Considerable surprise and a good deal of adverse criticism seem to have been created both at home and abroad by the action of the U. S. House of Representatives in voting tentatively to admit Spain into the foreign aid program for western Europe.

Well, one can understand that reaction in view of Generalissimo Franco's widespread reputation of being the bad lad of western Europe. So strong has been this feeling that the sixteen nations involved in the Marshall plan didn't invite Spain to join in the rehabilitation program. Furthermore, the United Nations not so long ago registered its disapproval of the Franco government, and the Washington State Department has a black mark against the regime.

Still, this column hasn't been ruffled by the House action. I'm against dictatorship whether it be in Madrid or Moscow or any of the other capitals which have totalitarian governments, but I'll tell you something.

If my house is burning and Generalissimo Franco comes along and offers to help extinguish the fire, I'm not going to retort: "Get thee gone, thou Fascist!" I'm going to say: "Sure, Francisco, come on." And if that is wrong ethically, it still is horse sense.

Appropos of this theme one recalls the British Prime Minister Churchill's friendly references to Spain in an important war-time foreign policy speech in the House of Commons on May 24, 1944. He dwelt on how Madrid kept out of the war, although in 1940 "it seemed certain that Spain would join Germany." He added that he looked forward to the day when relations with Madrid and its "extremely fertile trade between Spain and this country" during the war and after the peace.

Churchill clearly wasn't condoning the sins of the Franco regime. He was taking a realistic view of the situation. It's one thing to condemn the totalitarian government of Spain, and another to try to eliminate that important country from the economic structure of western Europe.

Indeed that fact is tacitly recognized generally by Spain's neighbors, since Britain and numerous other western European countries have trade agreements with Madrid. Spain has many resources which are highly important to European recovery, and her sister nations obviously feel that it is better to do business with her and hope that political reform will come in due course.

However, even if you wash out the economic value of Spain to the Marshall plan, there still remains the fact that militarily she is a vital base for the defense of western Europe. She lies up against the narrow strait of Gibraltar, which is the entrance to the Mediterranean. The military authorities of the western democracies certainly don't want to lose such a strategic prize.

There is no believer in democracy who doesn't want to see a democratic government in Madrid. However, the most active pressure for a new government is coming not from democracies but from communists. Establishment of a red regime in Madrid would give Russia the base she needs for continuation of her drive to communize all Europe.

Oil Industry to Decide on Rationing

By STERLING F. GREEN

Washington, April 1—(AP)—Oil industry leaders gathered today to decide whether to set up a voluntary gasoline rationing system to cope with an expected shortage this summer.

A 23-member petroleum industry advisory committee, holding its first meeting with secretary of the interior Krug, was expected to offer plans to keep vital services fueled with gasoline and oil during the next 12 months.

The session was arranged under terms of the Republican anti-inflation act passed late last year.

An Interior Department spokesman said the group would consider voluntarily "regulations" to guarantee fuel for these and other essential uses.

"Gasoline this summer, farm vehicles, planting and harvesting equipment, doctors' cars, ambulances, police and fire vehicles.

Communists May Call General Strike in Italy

Rome, April 1—(AP)—Italy may be gripped by a general strike at the time of her April 18 election test between Communists and anti-Communists.

The Italian Communist Party (CPI), with 6,000,000 members, is the largest in Europe.

CPI President Giuseppe Di Vittorio, a Communist, said in Palermo, Sicily, last night the executive committee will call the strike April 9 unless police have found a satisfying Sicilian labor leader by that time.

THE STORY: Patricia Mink goes to London three times a week to attend a boarding school. It is the only boarding school in the world where the students are all orphans. Patricia is a beautiful girl who has been brought up and with her in the country. She always comes home on the train and for some time now has been trying to pick her up. Patricia is too proper to talk to a strange young man. One evening, an accident halts the train about a mile from her station. Patricia offers to walk her there, so she won't be too late getting home, and she accepts. He asks her to meet him at nearby Stortford, the following Saturday for tea and movies. She tells him her name would never allow it. Patricia, however, when Aunt Helen told her to go to Stortford that very Saturday to change a library book. Patricia meets her at the station. They have tea and Patricia tells Paul she has a twin sister whom she hasn't seen since childhood.

IV

Patience said, a little anxiously as they entered the car. "You won't let me lose my twin back, will you? It goes as usual."

"I'll want to, but if you insist—" "I do."

He held her hand in the picture. He wanted to kiss her, but he was on the platform, but decided against it. Maybe next Saturday, or the one after—

"We'll do this again?" "In I can."

"You could surely tell Aunt Helen that you were like coming to change her library book."

"Yes, I might do that."

"And in the meantime—I'll look out for you on the train on Monday."

"I'll be there."

She was leaning out of the window now, and rather wished he'd said her good-bye, and she'd be looking at him for wishing it.

"Oh, come safely. Don't speak to any strange men, remember!" she laughed out.

"I shouldn't be happy to."

"It was a strange man. Still, I don't want to make you speak to him."

"But you didn't seem at all strange. I'd seen you so often traveling down in the same carriage."

"Oh, so you had noticed me?" "Of course."

"How adorable! Gosh, that's made you go quite pink!"

The guard blew his whistle. She hurried out of the window, impulsively, holding out her hand to him.

"Good-bye, and thank you."

He also waved his hand as it began to move slowly down the platform.

"Adorable!" he called.

"Well?"

"I suppose you know I'm in love with you."

She gasped. She didn't know what to say to him. She just stood there at the window, watching him, waiting for him as at last he stopped running, her heart thumping madly. Then she sank down in the seat wondering if she were dreaming. She sat very still, her hand folded in her lap, trying to quiet down a little. Was this the way her mother had felt when first she'd met her father? Well, she, her daughter, knew what had happened. She'd run away. Been out all completely by her family. Been deserted by her lover, and left to die of a broken heart. Shouldn't that be a warning to her?

Oh, if only her mother had lived so that she, Patricia, could have grown up with her to guide her. She'd have understood that she was bound to come when the time came, and she would happen to find Aunt Helen and Aunt Alice. It seemed to know the way she was feeling. They were two good friends. They'd probably helped her when ever been in love in their lives.

They were in the sitting-room when she got in, sitting in their customary places, either side of the fire. Two unadorned, simple, heavy chairs, with kindly blue eyes and softly smiling voices. Extent perhaps Aunt Helen.

en's which on occasions could have an edge to it, just as her eyes too could flash sparks if anything happened to annoy her. They were flashing sparks now as Patricia, still in a daze, was suddenly remembering that she'd not go to the library book.

"But, dear child, when did you last have it?" asked Aunt Alice mildly. "It's not like you to lose things."

"It's really most tiresome of you," said Aunt Helen sternly. "The very thing I sent you into Stortford to get."

"I know, Aunt Helen. I truly am most terribly sorry. I'm afraid I must have left it in the train."

The elder Miss Melville made a clicking sound of disapproval.

"I must say I feel most vexed about it." Her aunt looked at her more closely. "You're looking very flushed. Why is that, I wonder?"

"Perhaps because I've been hurrying."

"Patience, dear, your eyes are very bright," said her Aunt Alice, looking at her anxiously over the top of her steel-rimmed spectacles. "Helen, you don't think she's got a temperature? I really do think the dear child looks quite feverish."

Patience moved towards the door. She said she was perfectly well. No, of course, there was nothing wrong with her.

"I think perhaps a hot drink and an early night might be a good idea," said her Aunt Alice, who was never in bed a moment later than 10 whatever might happen.

Patience slid from the room and prayed that when she came down again they would question her no further. But she'd stay upstairs for a little while. She wanted to be alone. To go over it all again. To savor the wonder of it all. The joy. To turn over in her mind how she could possibly manage to meet him in Stortford again next Saturday.

Ex-Arkansas Cagers on Olympic Team

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

New York, April 1 — (AP) — Fourteen basketball players, probably the greatest collection of amateur cagers in the world, were named today to the squad which will represent the United States in the coming Olympic games.

The Phillips Oilers of Bartlesville, Okla., who defeated the University of Kentucky, 53-49, in the finals of the Olympic tryouts last night, landed five men on the squad, as did the defeated collegians.

Phillips players selected for the squad by the 13-man Olympic basketball committee are:

Bob Kurland and Jesse Renick, both of whom played their college basketball at Oklahoma A. and M.; Gordon Campbell and R. C. Pitts, both from the University of Arkansas; and Lew Beck, from Oregon State.

The Kentucky players selected: Alex Groza, Wallace Jones, Cliff Zarker, Ken Rollins and Ralph Beard.

Other places went to Don Barksdale of the Oakland Bitters, Vince Boryla of the Denver Nuggets, Jackie Robinson of Baylor and Ray Lampp of New York University.

Carl Voyles, coach of the football Dodgers, not only is champion fisherman of "Dodgerville" — that somewhat amazing Brooklyn camp at Vero Beach, Fla. — but he also is track tutor and discoverer of a potential extra-point specialist for his football club. . . . Old Pepper Martin got out on the high school field these the other day and dropped kicked nine out of ten tries.

Travelers May Get Out of Cellar

By CARL BELL

Little Rock, April 1 — (AP) — Getting out of the Southern Association cellar, where they've been buried for three seasons, is likely to be a long, hard pull for the Little Rock Travelers this year. That is, if the Travelers have to go through the campaign with their present personnel.

"I'm hoping we can finish in sixth place," says new manager Jack Salt Zsavor. "That's about all we can expect."

Business Manager Ray Winder is a little more optimistic. "We might have a chance of getting into the first division if we get some more pitching, a good first baseman, a catcher and possibly another outfielder," he said.

From the standpoint of pitching, hitting and fielding, the Travelers appear to have no better off now than they were last year. But there definitely is an encouraging "new look" to the 1948 Rocks.

First of all, they're sure to have more hustle. Even before he met any of his players Saltzgeber promised "they won't stay if they don't hustle."

Secondly, the Travelers are faster afoot.

Little Rock has combined speed and hustle to fight for extra bases in spring games and the results have been pleasing.

The most pressing need is a first baseman. There isn't one on the roster. Purchase of a first-sacker is expected momentarily.

Saltzgeber and Winder would be happy if the Detroit Tigers, with whom the Travelers have a working agreement, would send them about four pitchers.

Little Rock, which won its last pennant in 1912, has the best batting average in the Southern Association. 300 hitters in Second Basemen Dan Davis and Outfielders Ben Carroll and Dean Scarborough, who are as certain of steady work as any candidate.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr.

New York, April 1 — (AP) — Twenty years ago, (less a week) Lester Patrick, grey-haired, non-playing coach of the New York Rangers, replaced his injured goalie in the nets during a Stanley Cup playoff game and led the club to thoroughly unexpected victory. . . . It was a historic occasion in hockey, not only because of Patrick's unprecedented feat but because up to that time United States teams just didn't win the Stanley Cup. . . . Today a battered, bruised collection of Rangers is threatening to do something almost as startling. . . . They staggered home fourth this season. . . . The second-place Detroit Red Wings took the first two games. . . . Now they're all square going into the fifth game tonight. . . . You can't predict a New York victory, but you can point out another 1928 parallel. . . . The Blue Shirts had to play the 1928 finals on the road because the circus was in the Garden. This year the circus moves in again before the final series can start.

Wheat Growers Cross Their Fingers

Kansas City, April — (AP) — Bread belt farmers and those on the great plains to the southwest have their fingers crossed this spring as the new crop growing season begins.

The attitude of these men, who each spring gamble once again on the elements and economics, is "wait and see." Most wheat farmers feel there is little chance of another bumper crop like last year's.

For seven years now they have had bumper crops in the hard wheat country, the heart of which lies in Kansas, Oklahoma and the Texas panhandle.

The weather and the law of averages are against a repeat performance. Yet there is a touch of optimism in the talk at the crossroads as the countryside begins to green up.

The corn outlook is better but Missouri is about the only state among those of the south central and southwestern group that can be considered much of a corn country.

Oats, like wheat, got caught by the weather. Wheat hit a dry spell shortly after planting time last fall and oats ran into a wet spring which kept farmers out of fields for the most part.

The farmer's lot has improved somewhat from the labor, storage and machinery standpoint — enough so that he probably can slip through the growing season and harvest without too much trouble.

The weather, always "x" in the farm equation, has had a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde effect on the crops in these parts. It even went so far as to greatly retard the tomato and onion crops in Texas.

Perhaps the brightest winter wheat spot is Missouri. A third again as much wheat has been sown in this state as was last year. The fall was ideal for planting and the wheat was away to a good start. The greatest snowfall in years added moisture and warm covering against the winter winds.

Sea snails furnished the purple dye used in the robes of early royalty. So highly was this color valued that no one of lower rank than a prince could wear it, and transgressors of the law were liable to death sentence.

One Unbeaten

New York, April 1 — (AP) — This is no April fool — there was one college basketball team which went unbeaten during the recently concluded season.

Homer Cooke, director of the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau, disclosed today that the West Virginia State College team of Institute W. Va. had compiled a perfect mark of 23 wins in 23 starts.

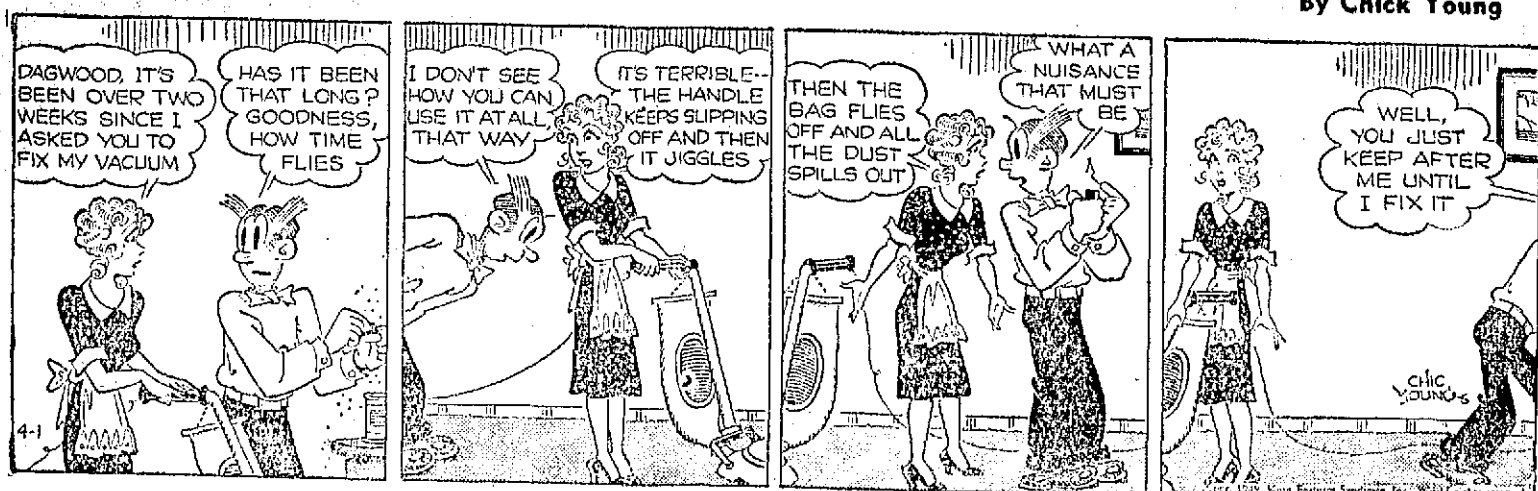

Perhaps the brightest winter wheat spot is Missouri. A third again as much wheat has been sown in this state as was last year. The fall was ideal for planting and the wheat was away to a good start. The greatest snowfall in years added moisture and warm covering against the winter winds.

45 School Districts Violate Law

Little Rock, April 1 — (UP) — Audits of school district funds in Arkansas counties have revealed violations of state law, including misappropriation and misuse of funds, according to officials of the Arkansas Public Expenditure Council.

In a report to the APEC's board of directors, the officials complained that state auditors for revealing discrepancies in administration of school finances. The auditors have been at work since being authorized by the 1947 legislature.

Among the discrepancies reported were:

1. In some instances, members of the school boards sold supplies and equipment to the schools under contract. The practice is illegal.

2. One district employed as janitor the nephew of the president of the school board and paid him more than $1,500 for his work. A relative of a school board member may be hired only by written petition of patrons of the district.

3. A number of school districts carried cash funds in banks, instead of depositing all money with the county treasurer, as required by law.

4. In several districts auditors were unable to find teachers' contracts, although warrants for salaries are not valued until such a contract has been filed with the county supervisor.

5. One district was served by two high schools, five miles apart. Salary of one superintendent was listed at $3,400 per year and that of the other $4,200. Administrative costs in the schools ranged from 17 per cent of the total school fund in one school to 26 per cent in the other. The report said administrative expense "may be the reason teachers are not receiving the salaries they would like."

6. In one district a surplus of $1,200 was distributed among the teachers. The audit revealed that the principal and superintendent received $400 each. Other teachers received sums ranging from $10 to $50.

The auditors said that in most cases school officials have co-operated and have been quick to alter procedures to conform with the law.

Arkansas Planter Shot to Death by Assailant

Jonesboro, April 1 — (UP) — Fred Holder, 63, prominent Eastern Craighead county planter, was shot to death last night by an unidentified assailant who splashed gasoline on and set fire to his victim.

The well-to-do planter was awakened about 9 p.m., officers said, by a man who told Holder he was out of gas. Holder left his Caraway farm home with the man and a can of gasoline in a small truck.

Officers believe the man struck Holder on the head, shot him in the stomach and poured gasoline over the car and body and set them afire.

Holder was not killed instantly by the bullet wound. He rolled out of the car and propped himself up in a roadside ditch where he was found a few minutes later by two motorists. He died before they could get him to a Caraway clinic.

Officers said robbery might have been the motive, but the assailant overlooked a billfold containing more than $200 in one of Holder's overall pockets. The money was pierced by the bullet.

Craighead county Coroner W. C. Craig planned an inquest later today.
